

urbanization and urban systems pdf

Urbanization refers to the population shift from rural to urban residency, the gradual increase in the proportion of people living in urban areas, and the ways in which each society adapts to this change. It is predominantly the process by which towns and cities are formed and become larger as more people begin living and working in central areas. ...

Urbanization - Wikipedia

Urban sprawl or suburban sprawl mainly refers to the unrestricted growth in many urban areas of housing, commercial development, and roads over large expanses of land, with little concern for urban planning. In addition to describing a particular form of urbanization, the term also relates to the social and environmental consequences associated with this development.

Cities have built extensive urban water supply systems, often relying on dozens of sources hundreds of kilometers distant (Fig. 1a). If one ignores this urban water infrastructure and just assumes urban dwellers obtain water near where they live, as previous hydrologic modeling efforts have, 39 ± 4% of urban dwellers would be estimated to be in water stress.
